Bowing 14 lbs. as the weight of an adult in the water, be espable of sustaining 200 persons, or 3,640 lbs. Its whole weight does not exceed 150 lbs. Three or four of them could be conveniently carried by each ferry boat, and the pilot or any other person could easily cast them exerboard in case of accident. A chain painter is preboat till all hands were removed in safety. invention is called the new marine life raft. It consists of two iren or copper floats, three feet in dia-meter, and beat length (from twenty to thirty feet). These floats have air-tight compartments, with builthoads two feet apart, are connected by means of iron leverage, to as to admit of the requisite extension, can be securely side a treaswork of iron chain to support the centre of the structure. This rait also contains two iron provision boxes, with three or four compartments in each. The house are within two feet of the length of the theats, and are securely fateured to the main bolts, which are commeted to the floats.

When this rait is closed up it occupies the same space that Francis's largest size life-boat would, and when extended, can accommodate one hundred and fifty people at the average weight of alteen persons to the ton. There are a number of others, but those we have described are sufficient. In fact, there is no want of life preservers, and therefore no excuse for ferry companies being without them.

This splendid steamer was completed and despatched a her first trial voyage to Havre, the 9th February last, uring the most severe period of our last trying winter. were weather and heavy gales of the season, she remrned safe from Havre without accident, proving herself, worthy floating monument of the honorable name she age, and took out 135 passengers.

This ship was built and modelled by Mr. Stephen builth, of the well known firm of Smith & Dimen. Such a succensul and satisfactory trial voyage must give very great confidence to her future passengers, as it not only fully teated the ship and engines, but also the ability and ser-manship of her experienced and worthy commander, Capt. Wottom. The Fulton, under the superintendence Oapt. Wotton. The Futton, under the supermonants of Capt. W. Skiddy, has been fitted with water-tight builtheeds, including diagonal full heads on each side the engines and boilers, making the whole secure and water-tight in ease of collision. The cargo and passenger armasgements are constructed on the plan so much admired he her consort, the magnificent and successful steamer "Arago," Capt. D. Lines. Mr. Mortimer Livingston, agent for this compact, has spared no expense—he has endeavored, and, we thut., succeeded with the tout-ensemble, in presenting the pub. — most safe and desirable conveyance to la belle France.

The principal dimensions of this ship are:—Length, The principal dimensions of this ship are:—Length, 200 feet; beam, 42.4; depth, 31.6—2,300 government, and 3,000 carpenter's tonuage. The materials are of the best kind. She is built with long double floor timbers, all theoreughly belted in the most approved manner, presenting a solid foundation for the engines and boilers. There are eleven tiers of keelsons extending fore and aft; all the frames are cross braced with flat iron from the floor heads up to clamps of spar deck; the ceiling and clamps are all square instened, that is, two boilts in each plans, through every timber, and belted vertically between every frame—a modern additional improvement in inequivalents is strongth. There are four water-tight builtheads athwart ship—two fore and aft diagonal (double) strongly boilted, and sequred to three tiers of kelsons, and heavy stringers under the deck beams, which are also cross braced similar to the frame dimbers, with flat from bars, and well boiled. By this arrangement the engines and builers are entirely encoused within this space, so that in case of collision the engines can be managed and controlled with ease and safety.

The bottom is first planked with yellow pine, and fas-

The bottom is first planked with yellow pins, and fas-tened in the usual way, which being rendered water light, she is re-planked, or double-planked, with white oak 5½ inches thick, and fastened with composition bolts through every timber. This extra thickness to the opt-tem is also considered to add greatly to the strength of the ship.

On the spar deck, forward, is a double acting four inch fire pump, with hose attached; then Captain Skiddy's (Brown's parent) anchor capstan, bitts and deck stoppers, by which thirty-two feet of cable were hove in per minute; they are very comp'ete andfefficient. We would resommend the impectors for the underwriters to examine this anchor gearing; we think no ship should be without it. Abart this is the forehatch, foremast, then the forward house and stairs leading to the second cabin, several spacious skylights, the steering or pilot hones, and, aithough there is a steering wheel aft, we think the plan of steering forward very preferable, particularly in runaing up channel or in the vicitity of ice. The helmsman could see as well, and as soon, any danger abasd, and shift the helm immediately, instead of waiting until word could pass aft.

The locust timbers on the side extend about four feet above this deck, with a rail and galvanized iron network enclosing the whole, outsite of which are suspended two large iron surf and four large sized tron life boats (Francis' patent), with two wooden boats, all fitted with carr, maste, sails, wa'er casks, &c.

Below this, on the main deck we have the dining saloon, sleeping rooms, venti ating and lighting gaileries, skylights, poished tables, beautifully veneered and polished portheads, ladies' saloon and boudoir, pantries, steam table, second cabin dining saloon, with sleeping rooms forward, all on the same plan and style as those of the steamer Arago, with some modification in the ornamental work and arrangement of pantries. This ship can accommodate 300 passeogers, carry 800 tons coal and 700 tons freight, with a draught or water of 17 feet 6 inches.

coal and 700 tens freignt, with a daught and the fact 6 inches.

The engines were built by Geo. Quintard & Co., at the Morgan from Works, under the supervision of E. Smith, Eng. They consist of two oscillating oylludors, sixty-five linches in diameter, with ten feet stroke, placed nearly at right angles, one forward and one about the shaft, with the air pumps between them, all working on one large awards nin, doing away with the centre shaft, so objectively. right angles, one forward and one about the shaft, with the air pumps between them, an working on one large crank pin, doing away with the centre shaft, so objectionable in double engines. There are two long brass tubular boilers—one forward and one about the engines, an auxiliary boiler, and two extra large sized Worthington steam pumps. These, with the six bige pumps and bilge injections, are all enclosed inside of swater tight bulkheads, perfectly secure in case of collision, with extensive arrangements in case of fire.

There are regular station bills throughout the ship, in case of accident. Every boat is officered and manned, the officer's rank being painted on her. Each boat is also provided with water, provisions, sails, oars, &c., and on sailing the passengers are numbered for each boat, to prevent the confusion we usually hear of in cases of collision or fire at sea.

FEVER AND AGUE.

20 MEGROES CURED AND A COTTON CAOP saved.

The following unsolisited letter, from a Southern gentleman and planter, is of universal interest:—

Dr. Rhodes—Dear sir—In justice to you I make this statement of fac a. Your "iever and ague" medicine is without doubt the best article ever put forth for the cure of that trouble-some disease. On my plantation were twenty-eight cases in the month of October, mostly my cotton prop. My neighbor, Mr. John H. Miller, had tried quinine; it had no sortitive effect. I began to despair of saving my cotton crop. My neighbor, Mr. John H. Miller, had tried your medicine; he to d me to get it, and I immediately commenced using it; my hands took it without losing a day, and got well a most with the first cose. It worked like a charm. I never in my life have seen anything to operate so sanitivity. I sent to Columbus, Ga., and got a fresh supply, and shall never be without it, II can fad it in the country. Very respectfully yours, Hhodes' fever and ague cure, or antidote to unslaria, the only harmless remedy in existence, is equally certain as a preventive, as a "cure." Tase it when you feel the chills coming on, and you will never have a single one.
